Creating the Garden

Proudly opened at Pardes Shalom in 2005, our Memorial Garden was created after a local Jewish family expressed a need for a place to mourn their son who died in a tragic accident in the Himalayas and whose body was not recovered.

Message from the designer

"Individuals, families, and community groups now have the opportunity to continue family tradition and celebrate community identity in this unique secluded location. I feel honoured to have been entrusted with the special responsibility of creating this space so that the memories of loved ones can endure."

Nature

The Garden is set in a beautiful and tranquil corner of the cemetery, carved out of natural forest. Wild grasses and floral plantings draw pollinators and create serenity. The space reminds us of our essential connection to nature.

A place for remembering

Memories are a way to affirm the lives of our beloved dead and the relationships we shared with them, thus enabling each of us to live a sweeter life.

The Memorial Garden is a hallowed place to remember people no longer with us and who have no burial site close by to visit. Their family and friends can now take comfort in sharing special moments with them while experiencing nature, remembrance, and spirituality all at once.

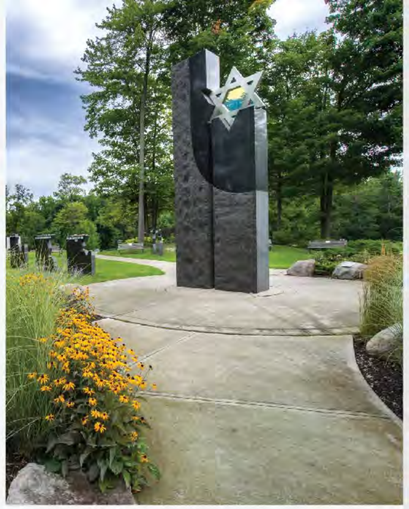
Nature

The Garden is set in a beautiful and tranquil corner of the cemetery, carved out of natural forest. Wild grasses and floral plantings draw pollinators and create serenity. The space reminds us of our essential connection to nature.

Remembrance

The Garden features a black granite monolith with a Star of David whose dichroic glass conveys the ever-changing lives of those remembered and those remembering. The placement of memorial plaques on a wall, bench, tree, or boulder allows visitors to commemorate loved ones. One can stroll through the space or sit on a bench and quietly remember.



Spirituality

The space invites visitors to gaze up at the sky and trees in connection with the heavens. All around, colours change with the seasons, allowing visitors to reflect on transformation as part of our spiritual journey.
